WEEK 5 | DAY 1 | MON NOV 2

Storyboarding and Characters.

Plan your story, then build a character you can reuse.

10:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m. | Multan Office

Instructor Muhammad Farukh F.

TODAY'S AGENDA

Two hours, eight steps.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 10:00 | Recap: Flow overview | 10 min |
| 10:10 | Why storyboard? | 10 min |
| 10:20 | Build a storyboard | 25 min |
| 10:45 | Short break | 10 min |
| 10:55 | Character building basics | 20 min |
| 11:15 | Consistency across shots | 20 min |
| 11:35 | Hands on | 15 min |
| 11:50 | Quick check and recap | 10 min |

WHY STORYBOARD

Plan before you generate.

- A storyboard is your shot plan in order
- It saves credits: you generate only what you need
- It keeps the story, the look and the length under control
- Professional editors and directors always plan first

Remember

A 30 second video usually needs 5 to 6 shots.

STORYBOARD PARTS

What each shot needs.

Shot number

The order in the story

Shot type

Wide, medium or close up

Action

What happens

Camera move

Static, push in, pan

Sound

Music or ambience

Length

Usually 4 to 8 seconds

THREE PARTS

Hook, middle, end.

- Hook: grab attention in the first shot
- Middle: show the idea or the problem and solution
- End: finish with a result or a call to action
- Plan one clear idea per shot

Tip

Write the story in three sentences before drawing any shot.

EXAMPLE

A tea story in six shots.

| | |
|---|---|
| 1 Hook | Wide shot of a quiet street at sunrise, a small tea stall opening, golden light, 5 seconds. |
| 2 Detail | Close up of hands pouring tea into a glass cup, steam rising, slow push in, 6 seconds. |
| 3 Person | Medium shot of a customer smiling and taking the first sip, warm light, 6 seconds. |
| 4 Middle | Over the shoulder shot of two friends talking and laughing at the stall, 6 seconds. |
| 5 Detail | Close up of the tea stall sign and a steaming kettle, static camera, 5 seconds. |
| 6 End | Wide shot of the street filling with people, soft music, slow pull out, 6 seconds. |

CHARACTER BASICS

Describe once, reuse always.

- Write one full character description
- Include age, hair, face details, clothes and style
- Keep the same words in every prompt
- Choose a simple, clear look so it repeats well

Example

A friendly 28 year old man, short black hair, round glasses, green hoodie, flat illustration style.

REFERENCE IMAGES

Show the tool what to keep.

- Generate a good character image first
- Use it as a reference image for the next shots
- Keep the same style words in every prompt
- Add only what changes: place, action, camera

Note

Flow features and names change. Check the live tool before class.

CONSISTENCY CHECK

Is it the same character?

- Compare face, hair and clothes in every shot
- Check the style, light and color across shots
- Fix drift by pasting the full description again
- Delete shots that do not match

Habit

Put all shots side by side before you move on.

EXAMPLES

Four character prompts.

| | |
|---|---|
| 1 Create | A friendly 28 year old man, short black hair, round glasses, green hoodie, flat illustration, full body, white background. |
| 2 Scene | Same character, now at a tea stall pouring tea, medium shot, warm morning light, flat illustration. |
| 3 Action | Same character, now walking through a busy market, wide shot, soft light, flat illustration. |
| 4 Close | Same character, close up, smiling, holding a cup of tea, warm light, flat illustration. |

HANDS ON

Plan and build.

- [ ] Write a three sentence story
- [ ] Draw a six shot storyboard on paper
- [ ] Write one full character description
- [ ] Generate the character, then two scenes
- [ ] Check consistency side by side
- [ ] Save your storyboard and prompts

QUICK CHECK

Five questions.

- [ ] What is a storyboard?
- [ ] Name three things each shot needs
- [ ] What are the three parts of the story?
- [ ] Why reuse the same character description?
- [ ] How do you fix a character that drifts?

RECAP

What you learned today.

Covered

- Storyboards and shot plans
- Character descriptions
- Consistency across shots

Homework

- Finish your storyboard
- Create a character and three scenes
- Bring your diary

Next class

- Twin and Clone Generation
- Consent and ethics
- Using a twin in scenes